OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

TO ALL PARTIES AND TO THEIR COUNSEL OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT as counsel may be heard in the San Francisco Courthouse, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, DOES 1-100, Individual Persons, all of whom are residents of existing housing on the ranches at issue in this litigation and some of whom work on those ranches (“Agricultural Workers”) will and hereby do move this Court for an order permitting them to use

Case No. 3:24-cv-09009

1 pseudonyms in place of their true names.

2 This Motion is made upon the following grounds: The use of pseudonyms are necessary to 3 protect Agricultural Workers from retaliation by their employers, eviction, increased intimidation
4 and harassment, potential harm, and the risk of deportation. Agricultural Workers meet the standards
5 to proceed anonymously established by the Ninth Circuit in Does I thru XXIII v. Advanced Textile
6 Corp., 214 F.3d 1058 (9th Cir. 2000).

7 This Motion is based on this Notice of Motion, the attached Memorandum of Points and 8 Authorities, the Declaration of Andrew Giacomini, the Declarations of Does 1, 5, 9, 14, 20, 23, 27, 9 and 29 filed concurrently herewith, all of the pleadings, files, and records in this proceeding, all
10 other matters of which the Court may take judicial notice, and any argument or evidence that may 11 be presented to or considered by the Court prior to its ruling.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

The Agricultural Workers are filing this motion to obtain an order to file their complaint with pseudonyms in place of their names. As discussed below, the Agricultural Workers have legitimate reasons to be concerned that if their identities become public, there is a risk of retaliation by their employers, increased intimidation and harassment, and deportation. Their specific identities are not germane to the case, and neither the other parties or the public interest will be affected by allowing the Agricultural Workers to proceed anonymously.

II. BACKGROUND

Agricultural Workers live on ranches located in the Point Reyes National Seashore in Marin County, California (the “National Seashore”) and some Agricultural Workers are also employed on the ranches. Declaration of Doe 1 (“Doe 1 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 5 (“Doe 5 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 9 (“Doe 9 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 14 (“Doe 14 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 20 (“Doe 20 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 23 (“Doe 23 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 27 (“Doe 27 Decl.”), ¶ 3; Declaration of Doe 29 (“Doe 29 Decl.”), ¶ 3. The National Seashore is managed by the U.S. National Park Service (the “Park Service”). When Point Reyes was established as a National Seashore, multi-generational ranching became a legislatively authorized use. It still is to this day.

In response to the then Secretary of Interior Salazar’s directive that the National Park Service pursue extending permits for the ranchers to 20-year terms, the National Park Service began a planning process to allow for the ongoing practice of permitting commercial dairy and cattle ranching in the National Seashore. Three environmental groups, Resource Renewal Institute, Center for Biological Diversity and Western Watersheds Project, sued the National Park Service in 2016 objecting to the issuance of these permits. The parties settled their lawsuit with the National Park Service agreeing to issue an amendment to the 1980 General Management Plan (“GMPA”) that addressed and analyzed the environmental impacts of continuing to allow livestock grazing at the Seashore.

28 After ten years of studies and analysis and a robust public process that considered over 8,000

1 public comments, the National Park Service decided to issue 20-year leases to ranchers at the Point
 2 Reyes National Seashore. Even though the three environmental groups agreed to this process, they 3 nevertheless again sued the National Park Service again in this Court, this time over the resulting 4 decision (Case No. 22-cv-145, the “Environmentalists’ Lawsuit”). The environmental groups are 5 seeking a permanent injunction prohibiting the National Park Service from approving 20-years
 6 leases with the ranches, which will result in the discriminatory practice of evicting Hispanic 7 agricultural workers and their families from their homes without due process.

8 For almost three years the Environmentalists’ Lawsuit has never progressed. As the 9 Agricultural Workers understand the situation the parties are participating in a confidential 10 mediation process and that this is leading to a settlement whereby the ranchers will relinquish their 11 leases and close down the ranches, including vacating worker housing. Declaration of Andrew G.
 12 Giacomini (“Giacomini Decl”), ¶ 3; Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 5; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 5; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 5; Doe 14
 13 Decl., ¶ 5; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 5, Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 5; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 5; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 5.

14 Agricultural Workers have an interest in the ranches leasehold rights as they have subleases
 15 with the ranchers. Some have long rented housing as a part of their original employment
 16 arrangement with the ranchers. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 4; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 4; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 4; Doe 14 Decl., 17 ¶ 4; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 4, Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 4; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 4; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 4. If the ranchers’
 18 leasehold interests are terminated as a result of this lawsuit, Agricultural Workers will lose not only 19 their jobs, but also their housing. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 14 Decl., 20 ¶ 6; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 6, Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 6. Agricultural Workers’
 21 households fall in the extremely low, very low, and low income categories, earning less than 80%
 22 of median income. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 7; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 7; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 7; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 7; Doe 20
 23 Decl., ¶ 7, Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 7; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 7; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 7; Giacomini Decl., ¶ 4, Ex. 1
 24 [Excerpts of Marin County Housing Element]. There is a severe lack of affordable housing in West
 25 Marin County, and a backlog of persons needing assistance finding interim housing, rental 26 assistance, and permanent housing. Giacomini Decl., ¶ 4, Ex. 1. The Agricultural Workers have 27 been searching for affordable housing, but have not been able to find a place to live. Doe 1 Decl.,
 28 ¶ 6; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 6, Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe

1 27 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 6. Because there are insufficient County services to address the current
2 housing shortage, Agricultural Workers and their families are at risk of becoming unhoused. Doe 1
3 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 6, Doe 23 Decl., ¶
4 6; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 6; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 6. Complicating the situation is the fact that some of the 5 Agricultural Workers or their family members are undocumented. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 5 Decl., ¶
6 8; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 8; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 8. Their prospect of finding new jobs is low. Their 7 undocumented status may also limit their access to government aid (Giacomini Decl., ¶ 5, Ex. 2 8 [articles]), and makes them particularly vulnerable to harassment and retaliatory deportation.

9 The ranchers intervened in the Environmentalists' Lawsuit to protect their interests. But they 10 are prevented from disclosing any information to the public because to participate they had to sign
11 non-disclosure agreements. This lack of transparency, secret negotiating, and imposition of a gag 12 order on matters of public importance is contrary to the public interest. The people that work and 13 live on the ranches, the Agricultural Workers, who are at risk of becoming unhoused and joining the 14 tens of thousands of people living on the streets, tried to intervene in the Environmentalists' Lawsuit
15 like the ranchers did. But, unlike the ranchers, their attempts were met with considerable opposition 16 from the environmental groups and National Park Service. As such, the Agricultural Workers were 17 left with no option but to file this action to ensure their interests are protected.

18 As part of their intervention request, Agricultural Workers filed an almost identical motion
19 to proceed with pseudonyms in place of their names. The Honorable Judge Maxine M. Chesney
20 granted the motion. Giacomini Decl., ¶ 6, Ex. 3.

As explained further below, this motion is necessary to protect the Agricultural Workers from retaliation by their employers, increased intimidation and harassment, and the risk of deportation.

III. ARGUMENT

Rule 10(a) requires that the title of the complaint must name all the parties. Fed. R. Civ. P. 10(a). However, the courts, including the Ninth Circuit, “have permitted parties to proceed anonymously when special circumstances justify secrecy.” Does I thru XXIII v. Advanced Textile Corp., 214 F.3d 1058, 1067 (9th Cir. 2000). In the Ninth Circuit, parties are permitted “to use

1 pseudonyms in the ‘unusual case’ when nondisclosure of the party’s identity ‘is necessary ... to 2 protect a person from harassment, injury, ridicule or personal embarrassment.’ “Id. at 1067-68 citing
 3 United States v. Doe, 655 F.2d 920, 922 n. 1 (9th Cir.1981).

4 The Ninth Circuit adopted a balancing test. A “party may preserve his or her anonymity in 5 judicial proceedings in special circumstances when the party’s need for anonymity outweighs
 6 prejudice to the opposing party and the public’s interest in knowing the party’s identity.” Advanced
 7 Textile Corp., 214 F.3d at 1068. The burden is on the party seeking anonymity to establish that the 8 need for anonymity outweighs the other party’s prejudice and the public’s interest. Id., 214 F.3d at 9 1068.

10 The Ninth Circuit identified three situations in which courts previously found the balance to 11 favor litigants proceeding anonymously. Id., 214 F.3d at 1068. As discussed below, two of these 12 situations apply here: (1) “when identification creates a risk of retaliatory physical or mental harm”;
 13 and, (2) “when the anonymous party is ‘compelled to admit [his or her] intention to engage in illegal 14 conduct, thereby risking criminal prosecution.” Id.

15 A. Risk of Retaliatory Conduct

16 The Ninth Circuit identified five factors that should be evaluated when deciding whether 17 pseudonyms can be used to shield the anonymous party from retaliation: (1) the severity of the 18 threatened harm; (2) the reasonableness of the anonymous party’s fears; (3) the anonymous party’s 19 vulnerability to such retaliation; (4) the precise prejudice at each stage of the proceedings to the 20 opposing party, and whether proceedings may be structured so as to mitigate that prejudice; and (5)
 21 whether the public’s interest in the case would be best served by requiring that the litigants reveal 22 their identities.” Id.

23 1. Severity of the Threatened Harm and Reasonableness of the Anonymous
 24 Party’s Fears

25 The first two Advanced Textile factors—severity of the threatened harm and the 26 reasonableness of the plaintiffs’ fears—“are intricately related and should be addressed together.”
 27 Doe v. Kamehameha Sch./Bernice Pauahi Bishop Est., 596 F.3d 1036, 1043 (9th Cir. 2010).
 28 Agricultural Workers are fearful of three types of harm as a result of their participation in this case:

1 losing their jobs, retaliatory deportation, and harassment by some “extremists”.

2 Economic retaliatory harm or the risk of physical or mental harm is recognized as a 3 legitimate means for litigants to proceed anonymously under a pseudonym. In Does I thru XXIII v.
 4 Advanced Textile Corp., the Ninth Circuit held that garment workers could use fictitious names in 5 their complaint because they feared that, if their identities were disclosed to defendants, they will 6 be fired from their jobs, deported, arrested, and imprisoned by the People’s Republic of China. 214
 7 F.3d at 1062.

8 Agricultural Workers are similarly fearful that if their names are made public, their 9 employment may be terminated, it may be difficult to find alternate employment in the community,
 10 they may be evicted, or they may be harassed or retaliated against in other ways. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 10;
 11 Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 27
 12 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 8. They would not only lose the means to support themselves and their 13 families, but because they live on the ranches, termination of employment would also result in the 14 loss of housing. Given the housing situation in West Marin County, overwhelmed government 15 services, and long waiting lists for assistance, there is real risk that they will become unhoused. The 16 severity of the harm extends beyond losing a job, but includes losing stability and shelter for the 17 entire family. Disclosure that may affect basic rights to shelter and a livelihood can be a compelling 18 reason to allow Agricultural Workers to proceed anonymously. Lozano v. City of Hazleton, 496 F.
 19 Supp. 2d 477, 507 (M.D. Pa. 2007), aff’d in part, vacated in part, 620 F.3d 170 (3d Cir. 2010), cert.
 20 granted, judgment vacated sub nom. City of Hazleton, Pa. v. Lozano, 563 U.S. 1030 (2011), and 21 aff’d in part, rev’d in part, 724 F.3d 297 (3d Cir. 2013).

22 Discovery of a workers’ immigration status could allow the parties and extremists to raise
 23 implicitly the threat of deportation and criminal prosecution to discourage the Agricultural Workers
 24 from pursuing their interests and requests for relief in this lawsuit. Rivera v. NIBCO, Inc., 364 F.3d 25 1057, 1065 (9th Cir. 2004). Parties can proceed anonymously if they have legitimate concerns that 26 the public identification would make them easy targets of intense anti-immigrant and anti-Latino 27 sentiment. Lozano, 496 F. Supp. 2d at 507.

28 Here, some of the Agricultural Workers are undocumented, as well as have undocumented

1 family members. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 8; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 8; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 8. These 2 Agricultural Workers are scared that if their identities became known to the parties and public, they 3 will be reported to government officials, face criminal charges, and be deported. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 10;
 4 Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 9.

5 Fearing harassment and violence involved with controversially public matters is another
 6 reason to allow the Agricultural Workers to proceed anonymously. Doe v. Stegall, 653 F.2d 180, 7 181 (5th Cir. 1981) cited by Does I thru XXIII v. Advanced Textile Corp.; see also Gomez v. Buckeye
 8 Sugars, 60 F.R.D. 106, 107 (N.D.Ohio 1973) (permitting plaintiffs to use pseudonyms to protect 9 them from employer reprisals). In Stegall, the plaintiffs sought to stop student participation in 10 religiously-oriented ceremonies and voluntary praying in public schools. Id. at 182. The Fifth Circuit
 11 held that the plaintiffs were entitled to proceed anonymously because the lawsuit made revelations 12 about the plaintiffs' personal beliefs and practices that were "shown to have invited an opprobrium
 13 analogous to the infamy associated with criminal behavior." Id. Evidence on the record indicated 14 that they may expect "extensive harassment and perhaps even violent reprisals if their identities are 15 disclosed" to a community hostile to the viewpoint reflected in the plaintiffs' complaint. Id. While 16 the Court believed the "threat of hostile public reaction to a lawsuit, standing alone, will only with 17 great rarity warrant public anonymity", threats of violation in conjunction with the other factors, 18 such as children, weigh in favor of maintaining anonymity. Id.

19 Court records are on-line and easily accessible. Agricultural Workers are fearful of physical 20 harm and harassment to them, their families, and children if they are associated with any opposition
 21 to the environmental concerns expressed by the National Park Service and environmental groups.
 22 Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 23
 23 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 8. The threatened harm is not hypothetical. As testified 24 to by several ranchers in the Environmentalist's Lawsuit, there are extremists that harass and 25 threaten the safety of ranch owners and their employees. Giacomini Decl., Ex. 4 (Dkt. No. 47-1 26 [Declaration of Julie Evans Rossotti], ¶ 18; Dkt. No. 47-2 [Declaration of Robert J. McClure], ¶ 16;
 27 Dkt. No. 47-3 [Declaration of Tim Kehoe], ¶¶ 21, 24; Dkt. No. 47-4 [Declaration of William Nunes], 28 ¶ 20; Dkt. No. 47-5 [Declaration of Peter Obstler], ¶ 14.) Agricultural Workers are concerned that

1 if the extremists become aware of their involvement in the lawsuit, the extremists will be able to 2 identify them, and the harassment and threats will intensify. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 9;
 3 Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe
 4 29 Decl., ¶ 8. Thus, the threat of harm is severity and reasonable.

5 2. Anonymous Party's Vulnerability

6 Agricultural Workers rely on the ranch owners for housing. If their identities are disclosed
 7 they risk losing not only their jobs, but their homes. So, there is a lot at stake for these individuals.
 8 Undocumented workers are also particularly vulnerable to exploitation because they cannot 9 complain for fear of criminal prosecution and the threat of deportation. Rivera, 364 F.3d at 1065.
 10 As undocumented workers, Agricultural Workers are particularly vulnerable because they believe 11 they are not in a position to complain to their employers, law enforcement, or the courts.

12 Further, the Agricultural Workers are of Hispanic heritage, and the recent rhetoric against 13 immigrants espoused by persons running for elected office has led to documented cases of racism
 14 and physical attacks. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 11; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 10;
 15 Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 9; Giacomini Decl., ¶
 16 5, Ex. 2 [recent articles]. There is a pervasive climate of anti-immigrant sentiment and violence in 17 this Country. Giacomini Decl., ¶ 4, Ex. 2. Agricultural Workers are fearful of similar attacks. Doe
 18 1 Decl., ¶ 11; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 9 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 20 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 23
 19 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 27 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 29 Decl., ¶ 9.

20 3. Prejudice to the Opposing Party, and Whether Proceedings may be Structured 21 to Mitigate that Prejudice

22 The relief Agricultural Workers seek, housing, is quite modest. The true name of each 23 Agricultural Worker has no relevance to this action or whether the relief they seek should be granted.
 24 So, there is no prejudice at any stage of the proceedings to the opposing party, and no need to 25 structure the proceedings to mitigate prejudice that does not exist.

26 4. The Public Interest in the Litigants' Identities

27 In cases where the public interest primarily centers around the underlying nature of the action
 28 and not party's identity, a party can proceed under a pseudonym. Doe v. L. Offs. of Winn & Sims,

1 No. 06-CV-00599-H-AJB, 2021 WL 2662311, at *1 (S.D. Cal. June 29, 2021). That is the case here.
 2 This case involves the public interests in, for example, housing, government transparency, and the 3 future uses at the National Seashore. However, the specific identities of the Agricultural Workers'
 4 are not germane to the Court's consideration of these important issues. The case does not hinge on 5 their identities. Rather, the case involves issues that affect the group as a whole. As such, there is 6 no public interest to be served by publicly disclosing the names of the Agricultural Workers.

7 B. Fear of Deportation

8 Immigration status is treated with great sensitivity. Public access to immigration matters are 9 restricted under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and protective orders may be granted for good
 10 cause or the documents filed under seal. Fed. R. Civ. P. 5.2(c), (e)-(f). Immigration status can be a 11 basis to prohibit disclosure of a plaintiff's true and correct name. L.V.Q. v. Geo Grp., Inc., No. 1:24-
 12 CV-00656-KES-CDB, 2024 WL 2853344, at *2 (E.D. Cal. June 5, 2024) (order granted to proceed
 13 under pseudonym and for protective order to protect private health information and immigration 14 status); Advanced Textile Corp., 214 F.3d at 1062.

15 There is precedent for protecting information about undocumented workers. In Rivera v. NIBCO,
 16 the Ninth Circuit considered whether the discovery process to inquire into the plaintiffs' immigration
 17 status should include inquiries as to citizenship. 364 F.3d at 1061. The Court granted the protective 18 order because the harm of disclosure would chill the plaintiffs' willingness and ability to bring civil 19 rights claims. Id. at 1064. As aptly stated by the Court, "undocumented workers confront the harsher reality that, in addition to possible discharge, their employer will likely report them to the INS and they will be subjected to deportation proceedings or criminal prosecution." Id. The Court noted the chilling effect that such disclosures could have on the bringing of civil rights actions, which "unacceptably burdens the public interest".

24 In Lozano v. City of Hazleton, the court found that the plaintiffs are entitled to proceed 25 anonymously because they feared disclosure of their identities would lead to deportation and make 26 them easy targets of intense anti-immigrant and anti-Latino sentiment. 496 F.Supp.2d at 507. Trial 27 testimony showed that "the intense public interest in the ordinances led at times to harassment and 28 intimidation that created fear even among those with a more secure social and legal status than the 1 anonymous plaintiffs.” Id. at 508.

2 As discussed above, some of the Agricultural Workers are undocumented or have family
 3 members that are undocumented. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 8; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 8; Doe 23
 4 Decl., ¶ 8. They are fearful of an arrest, criminal proceeding, and deportation, or forced family
 5 separation as a result of some members of the family being deported. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 5 Decl., 6 ¶ 9; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 9. These are the same fears expressed in Rivera v. NIBCO
 7 and Lozano v. City of Hazleton that the courts found sufficient to protect the parties true identities.
 8 The Agricultural Workers concerns are heightened by the fact that the defendant in this case is a 9 federal agency. Doe 1 Decl., ¶ 10; Doe 5 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 14 Decl., ¶ 9; Doe 23 Decl., ¶ 9. Further,
 10 like the plaintiffs in Lozano v. City of Hazleton parties to this proceeding have already been the 11 subject of harassment. The facts show that there are special circumstances supporting the 12 Agricultural Workers need for anonymity.

13 IV.CONCLUSION

14 Agricultural Workers have met their burden to establish that the need for anonymity
 15 outweighs the other parties’ prejudice and the public’s interest. Therefore, Agricultural Workers ask
 16 the Court to grant their request to use the pseudonyms of Does 1-100 in this proceeding for all 17 purposes.
